Introduction

This course explores the military and political leadership of the American Civil War of 1861-1865. It examines the war’s political and social context, its military history, the evolving aims of the fighting, and the central actors and events that shape our understanding of leadership. The instructors, one a social psychologist and the other a Brigadier General and military historian, lecture or present material on occasion. For the most part, however, our class sessions are devoted to discussion of each day’s reading.

A highlight of the semester will be a trip to Gettysburg leaving at 10:00 AM on Sunday October 28 and returning after dinner on Monday October 29. This trip is required for all students.

Below is a calendar listing topics and readings for each day the class meets. The assigned books are: What Caused the Civil War by Edward Ayers; Grant Moves South by Bruce Catton; Battle Cry of Freedom by James McPherson; The Killer Angels by Michael Shaara; and April 1865 by Jay Winik. Three chapters are posted on e-reserve (ER). The ER number of each chapter is indicated below.

Course Requirements

1. All students are expected to attend class and to come fully prepared to participate in discussion.

2. Each week you should email both instructors brief—about 150 words—questions or comments on either Monday or Wednesday’s reading. We will coordinate the email assignments in class. The comments are due at noon on the day of the class. We will respond to them, ordinarily within a day or two.
3. There will be an exam on the material from the first part of the course on Wednesday, October 10 and one on the material from the second part of the course on Monday, December 3.

4. A paper of approximately 15 pages is due on Friday, December 14, at 5:00 PM. We will meet with you to discuss your plan for the paper. You may write the paper by yourself, or in pairs. We will ask those of you who do your papers in pairs to submit assessments of the relative contributions of each member of the pair.

Your course grade will be based on the requirements above. Class participation, each exam, your emails and the paper are all weighted 20%.
