

Senior thesis allows students to pursue research on their own topic of interest under the supervision of a faculty member. Senior thesis proposals must be sponsored by a faculty mentor and the signed proposal returned to the Jepson School for approval by the associate dean for academic affairs at least two weeks before the beginning of classes for the semester in which the independent study is to take place. The senior thesis experience will culminate in a final product. Students are expected to spend at least 10 hours per week on work related to the course.
