Course Meetings: Fall 2021

Section 1—7:30am to 8:45am, Jepson 118

Course Purpose

In time, future generations will ask, “where were you in 2020 and 2021?” The United States—and the world—is at an inflection point: a point wherein a series of otherwise disconnected incidents and small changes begin to bring about larger, more important transformations. Sometimes, these larger changes are characterized by harbingers—forewarnings and patterns that, in hindsight, help explain the road to now. 2020 and 2021 have all the indicators of a breakpoint:

• a pandemic
• an impeachment
• economic uncertainty
• ongoing war
• racial unrest
• climate crisis
• profound political polarization
• unprecedented urbanization

What brought us to now? Epiphanic moments are rarely characterized by short bursts—a cascade of seen and unforeseen forces often give rise to climactic years. The fuse, we know now, has both long and short implications.

There ain’t no such thing as the good old days. People’s lives have almost always been subjected to forces beyond their control. Very few people have been lucky enough to live out the duration of their lives without some calamitous occurrence disrupting plans. Imagine the generations of people that weren’t waiting on the plague, the eruption of Krakatoa, Spanish Conquistadors, WWII, or any number of personal tragedies. Those people had plans too. Life is hard and it is most often indifferent (if not outright hostile) to our plans. Most historical actors have lived demonstrably difficult lives. Luck, it seems, matters.

But people have endured—usually under very tough circumstances. We will contemplate these circumstances and how recent historical struggles may (or may not) inform the path forward. This course has been designed to historicize many of the factors that got us to this point. We will contemplate how history, the ethics of context, and leadership shaped the past and the roles historical actors/leaders played in making the present more likely. Could we have prevented contemporary problems? We will grapple with the politics of contingencies and the ethics of historical context.

It is impossible to understand current events without context. In fact, the social unrest and epidemiological issues currently gripping our nation --and the world-- did not emerge from thin air. We will spend the semester reading, talking, and contemplating some of the larger and smaller forces that paved the road to 2020.

We have currently resolved to suspend and reimagine the service learning component of the Justice course. Each of this semester’s sections has been designed to take a topical approach to thinking about this course’s path forward: especially with our community partners—our course will contemplate modern urban history and climate justice.
Course Objectives

The Jepson School's Justice and Civil Society Court explores the meaning of justice and obligation in contemporary society. If leadership is a moral relationship between actors predicated on role agreement, matters of morality are at the heart of these agreements. This course is not merely an essential component of the Jepson School's mission toward heightened ethical understanding; it begs students to think more intently on how these matters shape our obligations to one another.

This course is designed to make the liberal arts (e.g., the study of various social theories and history) relevant to our lives as local, national, and global citizens.

I'm not interested in changing your minds. I do not care what you believe in (i.e., your political preferences and moral prerogatives do not matter to me). I will, however, ask that you question and defend what it is you believe in. To that end, this course lends itself toward controversy and requires that you not disengage from it. Success in this course is contingent upon your ability to make real connections between classrooms and actual historical events (i.e., students must apply reading material and class discussion to the final project).

We will touch on just about every controversial topic in contemporary America—race, gender, immigration, climate change, war, politics, poverty, et al. You name it, we’re diving in. But we will do so in the spirit of civil discourse (even in a time of incivility) and respect. If you’re unable to do this, perhaps this isn’t the course for you.

Required Reading

Adjustments may be made to the course schedule as I see fit.

Aside from the books, required readings can also be found on Blackboard. Required Blackboard reading is delineated in BOLD PRINT (BB on the reading schedule). There are also readings on the schedule below that are not delineated here in “required reading”—they too will be on blackboard and are required reading!
Success in this course hinges upon your ability to read course material effectively (you will not do well in this course if you do not read), write about the readings, and other course material intelligently. Be prepared to participate thoroughly in class discussion/lectures. Failure to adequately complete service learning requirements can wreak havoc on not only your grade, but also your learning experience in this course.
1. Attendance and Classroom Protocol: Class attendance is essential to your success in this course. The extent to which I take attendance is contingent upon the state of the university’s COVID-19 protocol (i.e., it may change should the color coding change). You may not use laptops to take notes during class. Please keep your iPhones and iPads off of the desks!

2. Reading Material: THIS COURSE IS READING INTENSIVE! I strongly urge students to complete readings prior to class. I also require that you bring reading material to class. Please be mindful of the reading load and try to stay abreast current readings.

3. Class Participation: Please come to class prepared to talk extensively about the reading material and/or how the reading material relates to relevant subjects you think might enhance lecture/discussion.

4. Writing: Papers are downgraded ½ of a letter grade for each day late. I will not accept late papers that are more than 3 days late.

5. Cheating: I catch at least one person every semester, despite the fact that I’ve included this subheading in my syllabi since teaching at UR. That said, do your own work or face the consequences. Our honor system prohibits unauthorized assistance in the completion of given assignments. All students are expected to understand and avoid plagiarism and all other forms of academic dishonesty. Instances of cheating on coursework will be referred to the honor council—I will not adjudicate them. I simply send them directly to the Honor Council. As such, you must pledge and sign all written material for this course—“I pledge that I have neither given nor received unauthorized assistance during the completion of this work”. I will not grade assignments that students fail to pledge. You may not upload course materials from blackboard, class notes, etc. to any course-specific webpage (e.g., coursehero.com). Course materials from blackboard are my and other scholars’ work.

6. Communication: Please check your email regularly—email is our primary mode of out-of-class communication. I will respond to emails in a timely manner. However, I will not respond to messages sent after 8pm until the next morning. Although email is a viable means to ask questions about the course, course material, or writing assignments, these questions may also be answered during office hours or by appointment.

7. Exams and Quizzes: Unless mandated by administrators for the purposes of contract tracing, other COVID-19 related issues, and/or serious issues, exams and quizzes cannot be rescheduled. Period. If you miss a quiz or an exam, your score is zero.

Assessment

Principally, the Jepson School abides by the provisions articulated in the Honor System. All written material, including papers, exams, etc. must have the word, “Pledged”, along with students’ signatures. Writing “Pledged” signifies—“I pledge that I have neither given nor received unauthorized assistance during the completion of this work."

Class Participation & Attendance: 25% of final grade
Reading Response Paper: 25% of final grade
Mid-Term Exam: 25% of final grade
Final Project: 25% of final grade

Major Assignments

Midterm: THERE ARE NO EXAM RESCHEDULES
1. Mid-Term Exam—October 14
2. Final Exam—TBD

Papers: Each student will write one reading response paper. The paper will address specific issues about the nature of course material, etc. It is your responsibility to not merely answer the question, but to answer the question creatively by using primary/secondary sources from the course. The reading response paper’s effectiveness hinges your ability to clearly answer the questions argumentatively and support an argument with relevant source material.

Reading Response Paper One: September 27, 11:59pm

3. Basic Guidelines
   a. Microsoft Word or Pages (NO PDFs)
   b. Page Length—roughly 800 to 1000 words (FIRM- no more, no less)
c. 12-point font
d. 1” margins
e. Times New Roman or Cambria ONLY
f. Double-spaced
g. Page number in header
h. Chicago Style citations in footnote form
i. Pledged
j. All papers are to be submitted via email on the due-date, no later than 11:59pm. Any paper submitted after 11:59pm of the due-date will begin to incur the late penalties delineated above.

Service Component: Symposium Project

4. We have recently resolved, particularly given the current situation with COVID-19, to not merely suspend our previous service-learning component, but to strongly reconsider our approach to service learning all together. You will all play a very critical role in this process.

5. We are planning a symposium that will take place tentatively on 10/23. Attendance for the symposium is mandatory.
   a. Following the add/drop deadline, I will organize the class into four groups.
   b. Each group will grapple with a problem and bring forward 1-2 individuals from their chosen community partner to serve on a panel for the symposium.
   c. In time, I will provide a list of community partners. It is your responsibility to reach out to these partners early on, learn about their mission and work, and assess the extent to which they match with your group’s objectives.
   d. The Final Project will emerge from conversations between each group and their respective partners. More on the logistics of this project to come.

University Resources
Staff members from the resources below are available to students for consultations regarding the points delineated below.

If you experience difficulties in this course, do not hesitate to consult with me. There are also other resources that can support you in your efforts to meet course requirements.

Academic Skills Center (http://asc.richmond.edu, 289-8626 or 289-8956): Assists students in assessing their academic strengths and weaknesses; honing their academic skills through teaching effective test preparation, critical reading and thinking, information conceptualization, concentration, and related techniques; working on specific subject areas (e.g., calculus, chemistry, accounting, etc.); and encouraging campus and community involvement. Hours at the Center are: Sunday through Wednesday 3:00-9:00 p.m. and Thursday 3:00-7:00 p.m. On-call tutors are also available.

Boatwright Library Research Librarians (http://library.richmond.edu/help/ask/ or 289-8876): Research librarians assist students with identifying and locating resources for class assignments, research papers and other course projects. Librarians also provide research support for students and can respond to questions about evaluating and citing sources. Students can email, text or IM or schedule a personal research appointment to meet with a librarian in his/her office on the first floor Research and Collaborative Study area.

Career Services (http://careerservices.richmond.edu/ or 289-8547): Can assist you in exploring your interests and abilities, choosing a major or course of study, connecting with internships and jobs, and investigating graduate and professional school options. We encourage you to schedule an appointment with a career advisor early in your time at UR.

Counseling and Psychological Services (http://wellness.richmond.edu/offices/caps/ or 289-8119): Assists currently enrolled, full-time, degree-seeking students in improving their mental health and well-being, and in handling challenges that may impede their growth and development. Services include brief consultations, short-term counseling and psychotherapy, skills-building classes, crisis intervention, psychiatric consultation, and related services.

Disability Services (https://disability.richmond.edu/students/index.html or 289.8032) The Office of Disability Services works to ensure that qualified students with a disability (whether incoming or current) are provided with reasonable accommodations that enable that student to participate fully in activities, programs, services and benefits provided to all students. Please let your professors know as soon as possible if you have an accommodation that requires academic coordination and planning.
Speech Center (http://speech.richmond.edu or 289-6409): Assists with preparation and practice in the pursuit of excellence in public expression. Recording, playback, coaching and critique sessions offered by teams of student consultants trained to assist in developing ideas, arranging key points for more effective organization, improving style and delivery, and handling multimedia aids for individual and group presentations.

Writing Center (http://writing.richmond.edu or 289-8263): Assists writers at all levels of experience, across all majors. Students can schedule appointments with trained writing consultants who offer friendly critiques of written work.

Awarding of Credit
To be successful in this course, a student should expect to devote 10-14 hours each week, including class time and time spent on course-related activities.

Disability Accommodations
Students with a Disability Accommodation Notice should contact their instructors as early in the semester as possible to discuss arrangements for completing course assignments and exams.

Honor System
The Jepson School supports the provisions of the Honor System. The shortened version of the honor pledge is: “I pledge that I have neither received nor given unauthorized assistance during the completion of this work.”

Religious Observance
Students should notify their instructors within the first two weeks of classes if they will need accommodations for religious observance.

Course Schedule
Adjustments may be made to the course schedule as I see fit.
There may be slight variations in page numbers, as some of the book editions have been updated. Use your best judgment.
