Office hours: by appointment
Class meeting time Tuesday and Thursday, 3:00-4:15pm. Location: Jepson 102.

Purpose

This course is shaped by the following three foundational questions:

1) What is justice?
2) What is justice in society?
3) What does justice mean to me?

Together we will explore ancient and modern theories of justice as they relate to society. Readings will focus on the nature of civil society, theories of personal and communal expressions of justice, and social and moral analysis of significant challenges facing contemporary society, with a particular emphasis on Richmond, Virginia.

This course includes a Community-Based-Learning (CBL) component in which students engage with the lived experience of social deprivation through a community organization in the Richmond region. The partnerships will culminate in a symposium to be held near the end of the fall semester. More details about the partnerships and resulting group projects will be shared in class.

Learning Objectives

In seeking to answer the three foundational questions, the course shall enable the students to meet these objectives:

- explore the relationship between justice and contemporary society;
- analyze social challenges in light of different theories of justice;
- learn from and with others of different backgrounds and beliefs;
- develop relationships across lines of difference within a community-based organization;
- discern and develop personal values and goals;
- reflect on career and personal opportunities to advance justice in society.

Other Readings

All other readings are on blackboard.

Graded work (1000 points total)

- Class participation: 100 points
  The three journal entries will be considered in the participation grade.
- Four reading quizzes: 100 points (25 points each)
- Presentation: 100 points
- Community Based Project: 100 points
- Mid-term paper: 250 points
- Final paper: 350 points

Graded work defined

- Class participation: This means attending class prepared and alert. High marks will be given to students who engage thoughtfully and regularly with the readings, the content of the lectures, and the reflections of their peers. Two journal entries will be included in the class participation grade. No electronics allowed (computers, tablets, phones) unless required for learning accommodations. Drinks are allowed in class; food is not. Students should use the bathroom ahead of class time so as not to disrupt the chemistry of the class. Students are expected to be in class unless prior arrangements have been made with the instructor beforehand.

- Reading quizzes: The course readings are central to the learning goals of the class. There will be four pop quizzes throughout the semester to ensure students are reading and comprehending the material.

- Class presentation: Each student will make a 10 minute presentation to the class on the content of your final paper. The presentations should have a clear thesis, be well organized, and stay within the allotted timeframe. Higher grades will be given to presentations that show clarity, creativity, and preparation.
• Mid-term paper: The paper should follow the format for papers in the syllabus and be emailed to the instructor before class on October 19. See the assignment prompt on page 7 of the syllabus.

• Final paper: The paper should follow the format for papers in the syllabus and be emailed to the instructor by 5:00pm on December 7. See the assignment prompt on page 8 of the syllabus.

• Community Based Project: Small groups of students will work in partnership with a community organization in the Richmond region which is focused either on education or mass incarceration. The projects will culminate in a symposium hosted by the Jepson School later in the semester. Further details will be provided in class.

The mid-term paper and final paper should be organized as follows. The organization also serves as a pattern for the response paper and journal entries, though word limitation for those assignments will necessitate significant focus from the author.

1. Format. Please type the paper double-spaced, in Times New Roman font size 12, on one side of the paper only, with one inch margins all the way around. Page numbers should be at the bottom center.

2. Title. Think carefully about how your title communicates the argument of the paper in an attractive way, and whether you want to use a subtitle. The title, name of course, word count, and your name should be on a cover sheet.

3. Introduction. Write this after you have written your paper, so that it genuinely introduces:
   - the argument that follows
   - the specific ways in which you are narrowing your subject down to a manageable size
   - the specific terms you are using that need some definition
   - the introduction should not take up more than 5% of a paper of this kind. One or two paragraphs should do it. The introduction for the response papers and journal entries may be only a couple of sentences.

4. Main body of the paper. A sequence of subheadings that divide the paper into logical, roughly even-length sections reassures the professor that the argument has been planned and reasoned carefully before being written.

5. Conclusion. Should be very short and summarize main findings.

Grading Standards:

These standards have been articulated by Jepson faculty members and serve as a helpful guide for students preparing papers.

“A” work is well-written, well-argued, and thoroughly conversant with the source material, containing no major inaccuracies or contradictions, and illustrating subtlety and nuance of argument. “A” papers consist of interesting, substantial thoughts well-packaged in technically proficient writing.
“B” work attempts to forward an argument and shows good familiarity with and understanding of the source material, and is generally well-written. There are generally two genres of “B” work: papers that have some of the qualities of an “A” paper, but also contain serious flaws; and papers that contain no serious flaws, but also lack originality or depth of perceptiveness, or simply fail to be persuasive.

“C” work makes an attempt to complete an assignment but contains substantial flaws, either of writing quality, inadequate comprehension of the material, unsupported arguments, and/or logically contradictory or implausible arguments.

“D” and “F” work refers to papers that are seriously inadequate and fail to meet the basic requirements of the assignment.

Late Paper Policy: Papers, journals, and presentation material should be emailed to the instructor prior to the beginning of the class period when they are due. Papers and journal entries should be emailed as a PDF. Students will receive a one letter grade penalty for every day an assignment is late.

Attendance Policy: Students are expected to be in class unless prior arrangements have been made with the instructor. Unexcused absences will negatively impact the student’s final grade.

The Honor System: The Jepson School supports and adheres to the provisions of the Honor System as sanctioned by the School of Arts and Sciences. All work should be your own. A violation of the Honor System may result in a failing grade for the course.

Journal Entry 3: Describe how you think about justice, or an aspect of justice, differently as a result of the class and community-based partnerships. Draw on a character, or key idea, from one of the readings we did this semester to inform reflections. The journal should be 700-800 words in length and emailed to the instructor prior to class. Be prepared to present a section of your journal entry to the class.

Th December 2 Course Conclusion

Mid-Term Paper Prompt

Choose a justice-related issue in contemporary American society such as healthcare disparities, immigration, child poverty, various forms of racial inequality, the environmental crisis, etc. You will then need to shape the issue for a particular context. For example, child poverty in Richmond, VA, or the impact of climate change on communities of color in a specific region.

The paper should include the following:

1) A strong thesis statement

2) At least four reputable academic research sources

3) A summary of the four approaches to justice we have looked at in the class:
   - Utilitarianism
   - Libertarian/Rights Based
   - Justice as Social Contract
   - Virtue and the Good Life

4) Use one of the theories, along with your research, to articulate a potential solution to the issue you are exploring.

The paper should follow the format guidelines in the syllabus. It should be 2200-2500 words in length.

The paper should be emailed to the instructor as PDF before class begins on Tuesday, October 19.
Final Paper Prompt

Develop a systematic analysis of the specific social problem your community based partnership has been addressing. You should draw on your own experience, conversations with those you have been working alongside throughout the semester, the course readings, and at least five outside reputable published sources to support your analysis.

The paper should be 2700-3000 words in length and follow the format outlined in the syllabus. The paper should have a clear thesis statement and a well-developed argument.

The paper should be emailed to the instructor as a PDF by 5:00pm on Tuesday, December 7.

ADDITIONAL SUPPORT

If you experience difficulties in the class, do not hesitate to consult with your instructor. There are also other resources that can support you in your efforts to meet course requirements.

Academic Skills Center (http://asc.richmond.edu or 289-8626) helps students assess their academic strengths and weaknesses; hone their academic skills through teaching effective test preparation, critical reading and thinking, information processing, concentration, and related techniques; work on specific subject areas (e.g., calculus, chemistry, accounting, etc.); and encourage campus and community involvement.

Career Development Center (http://cdc.richmond.edu/ or 289-8547) can assist you in exploring your interests and abilities, choosing a major, connecting with internships and learning experiences, investigating graduate and professional school options, and landing your first job. We encourage you to schedule an appointment with a career advisor during your first year.

Counseling and Psychological Services (http://caps.richmond.edu or 289-8119) assists students in meeting academic, personal, or emotional challenges. Services include assessment, short-term counseling and psychotherapy, crisis intervention and related services.

Speech Center (http://speech.richmond.edu or 289-6409): Assists with preparation and practice in the pursuit of excellence in public expression. Recording, playback, coaching and critique sessions offered by teams of student consultants trained to assist in developing ideas, arranging key points for more effective organization, improving style and delivery, and handling multimedia aids for individual and group presentations.

Writing Center assists writers at all levels of experience, across all majors. Students can schedule appointments with trained writing consultants who offer friendly critiques of written work: http://writing.richmond.edu
Boatwright Library Research Librarians assist students with identifying and locating the best resources for class assignments, research papers and other course projects. Librarians also assist students with questions about citing sources correctly. Students can schedule a personal research appointment, meet with librarians at the library’s main service desk, email, text or IM. Link to http://library.richmond.edu/help/ask.html or call 289-8669.

Jepson School Common Syllabus Insert

Awarding of Credit
To be successful in this course, a student should expect to devote 10-14 hours each week, including class time and time spent on course-related activities.

Addressing Microaggressions on Campus
Microaggressions are the everyday verbal, nonverbal, and environmental slights, snubs, or insults, whether intentional or unintentional, that communicate hostile, derogatory, or negative messages to target persons based solely upon their marginalized group membership. Recent research has found that, when professors do not address microaggressions in class, microaggressions foster alienation of marginalized groups. Furthermore, both students and faculty that are exposed to microaggressions more often are more likely to have depressive symptoms and negative affect (a negative view of the world). A comfortable and productive environment where meaningful learning happens can be collectively created through actions, words, or environmental cues that promote the inclusion and success of marginalized members, recognizing their embodied identity, validating their realities, resisting sexism, ableism, and racism.
The University of Richmond is committed to building an inclusive community. To this end, the Student Center for Equity and Inclusion (SCEI) was created in 2021 and offers ongoing support and assistance for a diverse student body. With this in mind, as a community member at the University of Richmond, I pledge to address microaggressions in the classroom by holding myself, other students, and faculty accountable for what is said and being receptive to criticism when perpetuating these slights, snubs, or insults.
